PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

Autumn has arrived in Canberra. Trees are starting to wear their beautiful colours and wonderful sunny days follow the cool fresh morning air as I walk my usual track before starting the day. It really is my favourite time of the year but also the busiest month for our PPSEAWA activities with both International Women's Day and Harmony Day celebrations.

The time has come for me to write my final message as your national president. As I sit quietly pondering on what have been the highlights of the past three years, I am amazed at how quickly the time has passed. A highlight for me was the opportunity to represent Australia at the PPSEAWA International Council meeting in Hawaii in 2008 when we celebrated the founding of PPSEAWA in 1928 and the 80th birthday of PPSEAWA Hawaii.

Also it has been pleasing to see the way our small groups have been able to celebrate important dates on our calendar like International Women's Day and UN Day of Peace. Each year interfaith peace services have been supported or organised by PPSEAWA members in both Sydney and ACT to celebrate UN International Day of Peace on 21 September. Each year Sydney members have held a popular IWD luncheon to support UNIFEM's work and their chosen PPSEAWA(NSW) projects.

It has been particularly pleasing for me that our small national executive was able to host two very successful IWD Luncheons during our term of office, and with the support of members and friends raise funds to help worthwhile projects in Northern Thailand and Samoa. Both events were fully booked with women eager to celebrate how far women have come in Australia since 1911 and the feeling of solidarity with our sisters in helping needy overseas projects was something special.

The hosting of a Harmony day event each March in Canberra has also been a wonderful way to celebrate our different cultures while enjoying a simple walk by the lake followed by refreshments. We are indebted to the Australian Women's Coalition for funding this harmonious time together for the past three years and to Noelle and Luisa for organising. I am looking forward to this year's event which will take place on 28 March and will feature multicultural entertainment.

Our national support for the work of UNIFEM AUSTRALIA and UNITED NATIONS ASSOCIATION of AUSTRALIA has been constant during the three years and rewarding to all members who took the opportunity to be involved.

It has also been a great pleasure for me to work alongside the presidents of many national women's organisations in the AUSTRALIAN WOMEN'S COALITION over the past seven years. It has raised the national profile of PPSEAWA enormously and given us the opportunity to have a voice in important decision making regarding women's issues at federal level. I thank members for the time taken to fill out the many surveys and the generous time given to thinking about issues to improve the status of women in Australia. I appreciate the fact that Luisa has taken on this representative position for PPSEAWA and is doing an excellent job.

Despite the disappointment of AWC not being chosen as one of the government funded women's alliances for the next three years we can feel justly proud of the work the coalition has done over the years and the achievements made in raising awareness of issues such as life, work and family balance and healthy ageing. There has been a ground swell of willingness to continue the collaborative work which started back in 2002. The coalition will continue to operate regardless of government funding and PPSEAWA (Australia) will continue to work with the AWC.

The president of AWC, Dr Gabrielle Casper has kindly agreed to be our guest speaker at our 56th Annual General meeting in Sydney in May. I'm sure she will have some very interesting points to make regarding the future of the coalition.

Our AGM must be held before the end of May to comply with our national constitution so that puts a lot of pressure on the national executive to complete arrangements before the Australian delegation leaves for Bali. The Annual General Meeting and National Committee meeting will be held at the CWA residence at Potts Point, Sydney from 10am-4pm on Saturday 29 May-only days after our return from Bali. All national officer positions will become vacant then and nominations are welcomed for all national officer positions before the delegation leaves for Bali. The AGM will be held in the morning, followed by lunch after which members of the delegation will report on the Bali conference.

Of course we are very busy at the present time getting organised to travel to Indonesia in May for the 24th International PPSEAWA conference. Currently there are 11 delegates registered from Australia but there is still time for more to participate. Registrations close on 31 March. Despite my earlier health concerns I have decided to attend the conference and will be honoured to lead our Australian delegation. We are planning a special uniform this year and some are practising bush dancing as a cultural item. Members are collecting small items for sale on our Australian stall so donations will be gratefully received. Excitement is rising despite the fact that we are still waiting for the final program details from Indonesia.

There were some very sad times last year when our International President Viopapa and her sister Calmar, our UN officer, lost their beloved sister-in-law during the tsunami in Samoa. We extend our deepest sympathy to the Annandale family for their terrible loss and we hope our support of reconstruction projects in Samoa with funds raised at our IWD luncheon will help to ease the pain for them and be a lasting tribute to Tui and other PPSEAWA sisters in Samoa.

Our sympathy also goes to Leigh, our wonderful newsletter editor, for the loss of her husband David in recent weeks, with our admiration for her courage and strength as his carer during a long illness during 2009.

One of the most significant happenings for PPSEAWA during the last three years was the establishment of the Young Women's Fund. PPSEAWA(Australia) donated $2000 to the establishment of this fund showing the importance our executive gave to it setting the ground work for a secure future for PPSEAWA in the 21st century.

In Australia our numbers have declined further as our membership ages and some regrettably leave us but we have managed to keep relevant and just as dedicated to our main aim to foster peace and cooperation in the Asia-Pacific region as those wonderful ladies were in 1928 when PPSEAWA was born. However for us to continue to be relevant in the 21st century we must attract young members. So far we have not had a good record in doing this, a situation which is common to most established women's NGOs in Australia. We need to reassess the way we operate and recruit young members to survive. It will take willingness to make big changes and the cooperation of current members. I hope PPSEAWA is able to do this as our aims and objectives are just as relevant today---more so in fact---as they were in 1928 when this great organisation was founded.

Finally I would like to thank my small executive, Luisa, Moko, Noelle and Calmar for their friendship and wonderful support over the past three years, and also the presidents and members of our three groups who are keeping the spirit of PPSEAWA alive in Australia.

PPSEAWA NSW NEWS

We had our AGM on March 26th and Mrs Margaret Groenewegen was elected as our new President. We all look forward to her leadership and wish her well.

On a sad note, late last year we were shocked to learn that one of our corporate members, Nancy Brayshaw had been murdered in her home, and also we share with Leigh Harley in her grief on the death of her husband David in February. Several members attended his funeral service.

Our monthly meetings from September, 2009 have been interesting and inspiring.

We heard of the wonderful work being done by Camp Kookaburra among children 8-16 living in families affected by mental illness and the Jannawi Family Centre's work with troubled families.. At our November meeting our member Eva Morton shared with us about her trip with her daughter Joycelyn, including visiting places in Africa where she had worked with her husband for many years.

In February, 2010 we were all inspired as we heard the testimony of Reginald Zahiruddin a Pakistani Doctor who was kidnapped with his driver by the Taliban and held for 25 days. In 1997, in his capacity as President of a Social Welfare Organisation, he distributed the three sewing-machines which we donated for village women.

Our speaker in March was Colin Freestone, who, sensing the need for better understanding between Australia and Indonesia, in 1994 set up Indonesian Cultural Communications, an educational Management business that provides consultancy services to the Indonesian Government.

In recent months our members have participated in activities of other organisations, a highlight being the International Day Of Peace Service in September, 2009 at the Uniting Church Hall, Lindfield. As well as our own IWD Luncheon on 10th March 2010, members attended other IWD events.

We are looking forward to the Jean Arnot Memorial Luncheon on May, 26th when we will be sponsoring our member Eva Morton as a lady in her 90th year who has worked for her community for many years, when she will be recognised by Her Excellency Professor Marie Bashir AC CVO, The Governor of New South Wales.

Five members of our Group will be attending the International Conference in Bali in May. It will be great to meet with our PPSEAWA friends from other countries of the region.

International Women's Day - NSW

Wednesday, March 10th 2010

Once again, for those who wanted to celebrate this important occasion but who did not wish to breakfast in the city, there was an attractive alternate venue and more friendly time slot. The Girl Guide Conference Centre, Glengarry, at North Turrumurra, despite the threat of rain, provided a welcome spot, with easy parking and friendly faces at the entrance.

The tables for six looked most attractive, drinks and nibbles were offered and we were happy to buy raffle tickets to support the aims of the host organisation: the Pan Pacific and South East Women's Association and those of UNIFEM.

Amongst the fifty or so women present were girls and a staff member from Hornsby Girls' High School and it was good to see them there and it is hoped many more will join in the future. We were delighted to see that their school's public notice board showed their support for IWD.

President Joan Egan welcomed everyone and Jannette Smith introduced the speaker: Dr Jennifer Philps from the Children's Medical Research Institute, Westmead. who gave us an excellent overview of her topic: "Genetics: the future is now". To help us understand we were all given a booklet, which will be most useful when telling friends what we learnt that day.

A tasty buffet lunch followed and we went home with a pen, a pencil, and an IWD purple ribbon. The President thanked Margaret Groenewegen's very hard working volunteers and family members who made this luncheon such a pleasant celebration.

International Women's Day – ACT

PPSEAWA ACT celebrated the annual International Women's Day on 10 March, 2010 with a Thai Banquet luncheon at the Deakin Thai Cuisine restaurant. It was successful with eighty people present enjoying the tasty food which highlighted both PPSEAWA's link of friendship with the people of the Pacific and South East Asia and a willingness to support them when in need. In this situation some of the monies raised at the luncheon is destined to assist reconstruction projects to damaged villages in Samoa following the Tsunami in October 2009.

Elenà Sioni and Calmar Annandale were guest speakers who spoke of their homeland and their individual contributions in assisting their people from different perspectives. Elenà's energies were utilised in organising and sending supplies from Australia while Calmar, at the coal face, provided psychological assistance to those affected by the Tsunami.

Another guest speaker was Julianne Cowley who gave an update on the Ayui Foundation hostel Baan Ayui for hill-tribe teenagers in Thailand. The money raised at the IWD luncheon in 2009 has further assisted this project enabling additional students to be accepted.

HUMAN RIGHTS AND SEEKING ASYLUM

On 10 December each year the world celebrates Human Rights Day on the anniversary of the signing of the Declaration of Human Rights in 1948. Human Rights Day 2009 focused on ending discrimination. Navi Pillay, the UN High Commissioner for Human Rights maintained in her 2009 message that discrimination lies at the root of many of the world's most pressing human rights problems and eliminating discrimination is a duty of the highest order.

On Wednesday 9 December 2009 UNAA(ACT) sponsored a panel discussion at the Legislative Assembly, where speakers discussed the important links between human rights and seeking asylum. Approximately 60 people attended including several PPSEAWA members.

Chris Woodthorpe , representative of the Secretary General to Australia read the message from the UN Secretary –General which claimed that no country is free of discrimination and invited people everywhere, at all levels to join the fight against discrimination. Speakers were Richard Towle, UNHCR regional representative for Australia, NZ, PNG and the Pacific and Dr Susan Harris Rimmer from ANU who currently works in the area of women in post conflict situations within RegNet.

Richard Towle believes there is a need for balance in the debate re refugees, asylum and human rights. Human rights have been missing from the discussion. When people move over a border to seek asylum it triggers many responses and a set of responsibilities by countries who have signed the convention. People have the right to seek asylum from any country from which they are being persecuted and it forbids states expelling people back to states where they will be persecuted. Human rights lie at the base of all human displacement. All displaced people want to go home and ideally the UN wants to rehabilitate the society at home for them to return but the reality is it takes years to find solutions allowing people to go home with dignity and without fear of persecution. The talk of queue jumping is a distortion and a human rights approach is important for refugees.

Dr Susan Harris Rimmer thought that the Rudd government did a lot of good things early on but Christmas Island was starting to look like Nauru. However detention reform was unlikely to be brought up to the Senate. The government will move cautiously with a hostile Senate. All our laws are defensive-homeland security thinking. How have they got through our defences? We are coping with an emotional issue and the emotional journey for Australians to deal with asylum seekers.

“NURSING THE NOBLE PROFESSION: Navigating the Realities of Tongan Nurses” by Luisa Latukefu

The first International Conference for Tongan nurses was opened by Her Majesty Queen Halaevalu Mata’aho at the Janfull International Dateline Hotel, Nuku’alofa, Tonga on the 10 March 2010. This conference was the first of its kind since introductory nurse training started in Tonga in 1920. About 150+ nurses attended from around Tonga, 70 nurses from New Zealand and 10 from Australia. The conference was from the 10 -14 March.

I was asked to present a paper on the idea of “where to from now for Tongan Nurses”. For me it was more than just a paper as I left Tonga straight after graduating from Tonga High School in 1965. I felt very emotional about this paper and it was going to be an opportunity to share my own professional as well as personal journey. As a young 17 years old, I proudly flew out of Tonga to start my general nursing training at the Leeton District Hospital on a Leeton Rotary Scholarship in July 1966. After 44 years of nursing in Australia, the thought of giving a paper in my homeland was quite a challenge and to do it in my mother tongue was even more nerve wrecking.

I did manage to present a paper, unfortunately not in my mother tongue but in my second language, English. I challenged 2 High School friends, a friendship that started at the age of 11 and 12 years of age (our first year at high school in 1959) to join me in presenting the paper. I chose to talk about nursing as a regulated profession. I chose the title Contextualising the Nursing Competence Framework. A vision for Tonga and the Canberra Realities....in a snapshot.” The Nursing Competence Framework provides the standards for the regulation of the nursing profession in order to be effective and responsive to the health care requirements of a country and in relation to the current regulatory and legislative environments that govern healthcare in that country. Tonga is in the planning stage of developing their own nursing standards and guidelines so it was a wonderful experience to be part of planning the idea in those nursing students professional pathway.

As for me, I still get teary-eyed whenever I remember those moments of re-discovering and reclaiming my roots and am still honoured that I took the opportunity to go through such a very humbling experience with my own people.

HARMONY DAY 2010

Thanks to sponsorship from the Australian Women's Coalition (AWC) PPSEAWA was able again to stage Harmony Day in Canberra on Sunday 28 March 2010.

Happily recent rain ensured the foreshore looked scenically quite beautiful and in fact a perfect autumn day, idyllic for a walk around Lake Burley Griffin with blue skies and a balmy 20 degrees. The walk began at 10am at Regatta Point café and participants were encouraged to return to the café by 11.15am in time for morning tea, with the option of either a 5km walk around the lake or a short 10minute stroll followed by refreshments which included juice, water, tea or coffee and scones with jam and cream.

This year 50 participated ranging in age from children up to adults in their 70's. A diversity of cultures were represented-Samoa, Tonga, Japan, Malaysia, Sweden, Philippines, Ireland, Australia and Sudan and so pleasing to observe the friendly intermingling and social interaction within the group.

However the highlight of the morning was Aguil De'Chut Deng originally from Sudan but living in Australia for 10 years, who spoke passionately and then sang unaccompanied both in Arabic and her native dialect about the role of women in promoting peace. She had an amazing presence and in addition a beautiful and powerful singing voice which captivated all those present.

A Message from MS RACHEL MAYANJA, United Nations Special Adviser on Gender Issues and the Advancement of Women to the thousands of members of women's NGOs who attended the 54th CSW meeting in New York in March 2010

Greetings from United Nations Headquarters! Spring has begun to leave its mark with lots of rain and higher temperatures. Just over two weeks ago you began your journey to New York City to attend the fifty-fourth session of the Commission on the Status of Women - filled with anticipation about contributing to the process of assessing what has been achieved since the Fourth World Conference on Women in Beijing 15 years ago. You came in great numbers – over 3,400 individuals from some 460 organizations in 138 countries, showing that you attributed great importance to the occasion. Despite experiencing a difficult registration process and strained facilities with limited seating, you attended over 90 parallel events hosted by Permanent Missions and UN Entities as well as hundreds more organized by NGOs in the Church Center. You added an important dimension to the high level round tables, inter-active panels and general discussion of the session, bringing diversity and wisdom and turning many lifetimes of rich experience into recommendations to improve women's lives. You seized the opportunity to meet others who share your passion for gender equality and exchanged expertise and swapped success stories on how to tackle injustice and discrimination against women and accelerate progress in all areas of the Beijing Platform for Action.

I recognize the important role of the vibrant women's movement that you represent and credit you with concrete achievements and measurable progress. Once again you have done us proud. – I hope that you took away with you a sense of renewed purpose and strength for your future work as a result of being a part of the session.

I wish to encourage you to let the message of Beijing + 15 resonate in your home countries – that equal rights and equal opportunities mean progress for all - and I look forward to continuing our partnership.

UN Officer's Report

On 29 September 2009, a tsunami struck the south-west coast of Samoa destroying villages and claiming some 150 lives, including that of my sister-in-law, Tui, and her 95year old mother, Anna. Tui was a long-standing member of PPSEAWA Samoa and a strong advocate of womens' and childrens' rights and empowerment. Tui was looking forward to leading a strong delegation from Samoa to the upcoming international conference in Bali.

Soon after the tsunami I travelled to Samoa to be with my family and while there I was privileged to be able to assist in the psycho-social relief efforts organised by the Mapusaga-o-Aiga (Family Refuge), a local NGO whose motto "Break the Silence, Stop the Violence" speaks for itself. PPSEAWA Samoa members were also heavily involved in the tsunami relief and reconstruction efforts.

Back in Australia, I joined several of my PPSEAWA sisters in celebrating UN Human Rights Day on December 9. Guest speakers were Richard Towle, UNHCR, and Dr Susan Rimmer of the ANU.

February 23 - I joined other PPSEAWA members at a meeting about the UN general assembly with the theme "What is the UN up to Now?" Guest speakers, Annette Ellis, MP for Canberra and Craig McLachlan, Assistant Secretary DFAT, gave feedback on their attendance at the UN general assembly in New York last year.

March 5 - again saw PPSEAWA well represented at the UNIFEM International Womens' Day lunch at the Canberra Convention Centre. Our own well attended IWD fundraising lunch for Samoa tsunami was held on March 10.

March 29 - I attended the WILPF (Womens' International League for Peace and Freedom) public meeting on "Women Breaking Through." Several guest speakers gave feedback from their experiences at various events - Commission on the Status of Women in New York (Lyn Lane and Lulu Respass-Turner, March 2010), the "Women, Faith and Development Summit to end all Poverty" in Melbourne (Barbara O'Dwyer, December 2009) and the Asia-Pacific Conference on "Womens' Peace and Security" in Manila (Sarah Boyd, September 2009).

The UNAA continues to focus, inter alia, on attracting more young members through the UNYA. UNYA and 17 school students were represented at the Climate Change conference at the Hague earlier this year. A Model UN Security council Education kit is also to be distributed to schools, via a website, with the aim of promoting the UN and a better understanding of Australia's bid for a seat on the UN Security Council through student research.

A significant development since my last report has been PPSEAWA's involvement in a UNAA government-funded project to explore the possibility of establishing UN Associations in the Pacific region. Three countries have already been approached -Vanuatu, PNG and the Solomons, with Samoa next on the agenda. At project manager, David Purnell's request, I was happy to put him in touch with several key local sources (NGO's, government officials, parliamentarians etc) who are best placed to facilitate David's research, including PPSEAWA Samoa. UN Associations have a mandate to raise the profile and promote greater awareness of UN aims and activities in the Pacific region. David will be in Samoa from 6 - 11 April and we wish him every success with his project.

I will be attending the PPSEAWA International Conference in May and look forward to catching up with many PPSEAWA sisters in Bali.

With you in Peace.

Calmar Annandale
UN Officer

PPSEAWA ACT Report

The ACT Group's Annual General Meeting took place in September 2009 and elected a new committee with Pam Rhemrev remaining as president.

On 28 October, Mrs Susilowati Joelianto, wife of the Ambassador for Indonesia, received us for morning coffee. The special feature was a presentation by the Indonesian anthropologist Butet Manurang, currently doing post-graduate study in Canberra. She began her voluntary work of bringing literacy and numeracy to indigenous groups in Sumatra, but she now leads a small organisation called 'Sokola' which works in various regions in Indonesia. Butet's talk touched on both the difficulties of remote jungle life, and how it was necessary to demonstrate the practical value of literacy and numeracy before it was accepted.

The group's final event for 2009 brought twenty four members and friends together for our End-of-Year celebration at the Thai Spice Restaurant. It was a relaxed occasion, where a pleasant Thai menu was followed by a gift exchange.

At our first members' meeting in 2010, Beverley Butterfield entertained us with a talk about her tour of Turkey last year, illustrated by fascinating photographs taken by Beverley and her husband Tony.

In March, 21 members drawn from both local groups (and some friends) enjoyed the opportunity to get together over High Tea at "The Refectory".

Canberra-based members who have registered to attend the International Conference have begun their preparation by attending meetings convened by the National President.
